"HEW TO THE LINE, LET THE CHIPS FALL WHERE THEY MAY."

VOLUME 2. MAYSVILLE, WEDNESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 24, 1883. NUMBER 54.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 5th St., New York, May 16, 1882. Messrs. J. C. Ayer & Co., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

A Matter of Interest.

An unwonted stillness pervaded the Swingtong Sewing Circle. All the stock topics had been thoroughly discussed for the hundredth time, and laid upon the table to be taken up at the next meeting. Mrs. Brown's new gown had been thoroughly dissected, and Mrs. Smith's bonnet talked until there was nothing left of it but ribbons; the baby up at the Joneses, a brand-new subject, by the way, had served for a good hour's dissertation on babies in general and babies in particular, together with such relative matters as nusses and teething, and short clothes, and eanker rash, et cetera and so forth, but had been finally allowed to sink to rest; the minister and the minister's wife, that disgraceful Bummer boy, those stuck-up Briggses and the new family in the Spencer place had all been treated with customary particularity; and, for the first time in its history, the Swingtong Sewing Circle was without a subject.

At this depressing moment, however, Mrs. Limberchin entered. She was down to the store, she said, and she thought she'd just run in on her way home. And had they heard the news?

At that word "news" every face lighted up, and every member of the Swingtong Sewing Circle looked upon Mrs. Limberchin with the affectionate regard which a hungry snail bestows upon a mince turnover. They every one looked as if they could eat her then and there.

"Yes," continued Mrs. Limberchin, when she had kept her audience on the tenterhooks of curiosity long enough to suit her; "yes, they do say that the Grosgrains ain't with a cent!"

This startling announcement did not appear to depress the members of the Swingtong Sewing Circle. On the contrary, they all seemed particularly happy, and their happiness increased rather than diminished as Mrs. Limberchin proceeded to narrate the details of the Grosgrains' downfall.

"I always said that the Grosgrains wouldn't always hold their heads so high," exclaimed Miss Pinchface, without, however, giving any definite reason for what she had always said.

"Miss Grosgrain's awfully extravagant," ventured Mrs. Titelase; "I've counted no less than ten new pairs of gloves she's worn to meetin' this summer—"

"I wonder if Grosgrain drinks," remarked Mrs. Prendergon.

"I shouldn't be a bit surprised if he did," said Miss Flint; "that woman's enough to drive any man to drink. All she thinks of is dress." And Miss Flint stopped speaking to think of that plum-colored sack she saw at Sellem & Co.'s, in the city, yesterday.

"I guess that young popinjay of a Dick will have something else to do now beside smoking cigars and staring at the girls," said Miss Oldenburg, a lady of uncertain years but of certain plainness.

"And that sister of his," interjected another member of the circle, "the proud thing! I met her square in the face only last week, and she took no more notice of me than if I'd been the stones in the street. I always did despise the hateful thing. I guess she'll feel it worse than any of 'em. But Lord knows I don't wish her any harm!"

"Nor I, neither," said Mrs. Colporteur; "but I never shall forget how she turned up her nose when I called there last month to ask if she couldn't give somethin' for the Afghan mission. She said there was heathen enough at home, and she gave me such a look that I almost had a mind to tell her just what people thought of her—the sauce-box."

But it is unnecessary to report the conversation further. It developed in the course of the next half-hour that the Grosgrains never were anything nohow; that nobody ever heard of them before they came to town last year; that they do say that they were talked about awfully in Scandaville, where they used to live; that Mrs. Grosgrain was only a poor girl, so they say, afore she married, and that he was as poor as Job's turkey until he made a lucky stroke in buying real estate; that he never was so well off as folks thought; that his property was all mortgaged, every inch of it; that they wouldn't trust him down to Stone's more'n six months ago—and much more to the same effect.

In short it would be much easier to detail what wasn't said against the Grosgrains than what was. If any one had charged him with robbing his grandmother or murdering his father, the accusation would probably have called forth no surprise, so perfectly in keeping would it have been with the character of the family as sifted by the Swingtong Sewing Circle.

It is needless, perhaps, to say that this was a red-letter day in the annals of the circle, and when the members separated they were all in the most exuberant spirits, and the "good-bys" and the "now-do-eall-won't-yous" were uttered with more than the usual cord ali-

A Struggle with a Bear.

While Harry Tucker and Wellington Sprague, conductors of the Maine Central Railroad, together with Orville A. Robinson and A. Q. Leach, of Portland, were on a hunting expedition at the forks of the Kennebec a few days ago, they suddenly encountered a monstrous bear, which gave a savage snarl, and then started for them. The young men had no heavy ammunition, but they made quick use of what they had, pouring hot shot into bruin's body. Quickly reloading, they all fired again. This second round enraged the bear, and she howled fiercely. Finally the fighting came to close quarters, and the hunters attacked the infuriated beast with the butts of their rifles. Tucker broke the stock of his rifle short off at the first blow. This reminded him of a monster pocket-knife which he had purchased at Bingham. Taking that out, he ordered his companions to once more hold the attention of the bear while he crawled behind her. The bear now stood erect on her haunches, and the three men were engaging her attention as much as they dared to do. Tucker rushed up behind her and plunged the knife deep into her side twice, his companions in the mean time rushing for her with their guns. The moment she felt Tucker behind her she turned and made a grab for his shoulder, just catching his coat and heavy shirt in her teeth. Be ore she could do more the stabs in her side had done their work, and she fell dead with Tucker's clothing still in her teeth.—Boston Journal.

A Plucky Soldier.

Private Hinkson, a reserve man belonging to the royal Irish brigade attached to the Gordon Highlanders, bayoneted seven men during the charge of Tel-el-Kebir, and was afterward attacked by three Egyptian officers. A bullet was sent through his right cheek and passed out of his neck, but he succeeded in bayoneting two. Before he killed the third another bullet struck him almost in the same place, opening the first wound and following a similar direction.

While lying on the ground he was fired at again by an Arab, but was rescued by two men of the army service corps, with only a slight additional injury to one of his fingers. He suffered from lockjaw for three days, and how he recovered is marvelous. It is thought that he will receive a distinguished conduct medal.—London Telegraph.

The coldest weather ever known in the Northwest now prevails.

The freight traffic on the Kentucky Central just now is unusually heavy.

The Prince of Wales is expected to come to America, some time during the present year.

The House Committee on Claims has reported favorably a long list of war claims filed by Kentuckians.

According to the last census the total number of manufacturing establishments in the United States is 253,852.

The receipts of the Internal Revenue Bureau have fallen off $400,000 since July as compared with the corresponding period of the year previous. The uncertainty regarding the future of tobacco was largely the cause of the deficit.

The despatches report an alarming condition of affairs in the north of Ireland. The grain and potato crops are failures and starvation is staring the poor people in the face. In some places the inhabitants are subsisting solely on Indian meal.

The provisions of the Tariff Bill concerning wool as reported by the Committee on Ways and Means is received with much dissatisfaction by the actual wool growers of the country, although it is alleged representatives of the National Wool-growers' Association wet with the Ways and Means Committee and unqualifiedly approved the measure. Since the points of the bill, however, have been made public the wool growers in various parts of the country have, with great unanimity, written and telegraphed to Washington protesting against the bill as reported and insisting that their friends in Congress shall vote to maintain the duty on wool as it is under the law now in force. Some of these protests are of a very pointed and emphatic nature, and even intimate that the whole business is a job in the interest of certain branches of the trade in wool. If the members whose districts are interested in wool-growing will in body stand by the true interests of their constituents it will become necessary to re-arrange the rates on manufactures of wool and thus the whole wool question will at once assume a very unsettled state.

BECK ON THE TARIFF.

An Extract From Senator Beck's Tariff Speech, Which Shows That Working-men Make Less Than One Dollar a Day.

Senator Beck said: There are so many important things on which duties are increased by indirection, many of them adding largely to the burdens of the people, that I want Senators to look at them carefully and understand them. That is the only reason I am occupying any of the time of the Senate now.

These protectionists are clamoring—indeed it is the clamor all the time—about protecting American labor, and keeping it far removed from the competition of the pauper labor of Europe. The commissioners have furnished tables, which I beg Senators to look at carefully, at the head of each of the schedules, and a consolidated table on pages 100 and 102. On pages 100 and 102 there is an abstract of the annual operations of the mechanical and manufacturing industries of the United States according to the census of 1880, the details being set forth on the subsequent pages.

These tables show that the total capital employed was $2,790,223,506; the average number of hands employed, 4,376,150; of these, 2,025,279 were men, 531,753 women, and 1,819,118 youths and children. The total wages paid amounted to $947,919,747. The materials used were valued at $3,394,340,029, and the products at $5,696,667,060. A calculation will show that the wages paid amounted to only about 17.6 per cent. of the value of the products, and that the value of the materials used and wages paid $1,027,408,000, or 36.8 per cent. upon the capital invested, after paying all wages and for all materials; while the average wages amounted to less than $220 to each operative annually, or, throwing out the 1,819,118 youths and children, the average wages of the 2,557,032 men and women would amount to only about $370 a year, or a small fraction over $1 a day. When we consider the high wages paid to clerks, foremen and skilled workmen, the average wages of the common laborer will be greatly reduced, and when it is considered that the American laborer pays from 75 to 100 per cent. for every article that has wool in it, from the blanket under which he sleeps to the yarn with which his wife darts his stockings, 60 per cent. for his sugar, and at least 50 per cent. for everything else except food, more than any laborer in Europe pays for the same thing. It will be readily seen how little of the protection which is clamored for in the interest of American labor really goes to the workingman and his family.

Notes of the Day.

Twenty-three theatres were burnt last year.

Tons of ice go booming over Niagara Falls.

Many horses have died of influenza at Toronto.

China gets its early European news from American papers.

Diamonds was originally discovered in Bengal and in the island of Borneo.

The rivers of Maine are lower than they have been known to be for over fifty years.

Mr. Osgood fixes the circulation of Mr. Howell's stories at about 15,000 copies each.

The Princess Louise smokes cigarettes. So does the peerless Patti, and Fredlie Gebhard.

A burglar at Ovid, Mich., used 50 cents' worth of chloroform on a man from whom he stole 35 cents.

Among the Chinese no relics are more valuable than the boots that have been worn by a magistrate.

Out in Kansas, where timber is not very plentiful, they have adopted the wise plan of having the school children plant trees every year.

Mr. Dana, of the New York Sun, is said by a correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution to be worth $1,000,000 outside of his newspaper stock.

Helper, who wrote the "Impending Crisis" years ago, and at one time had $60,000 in bank, is doing odd jobs about Washington to keep body and soul together.

The press of Japan is in a most flourishing condition. The number of newspapers reported at 113, and the circulation has grown in ten years from 8,470,259 to 33,449,529. The twelve leading journals have an aggregate circulation of nearly 29,000,000.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY EVE., JAN. 24, 1883.

ROSSER & McCARTHY,

PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

ON Friday next the minstrel corps, A notice has been made, With Zouave troupe and golden band, Will have a street parade. You'll see the red-legged soldiers drill, With sabre and with gun; And you'll be sorry if you fail To go and see the fun.

The river is falling again at Pittsburg.

Ice three inches thick was housed to-day.

The steamer Telegraph is laid up in the Kanawha river on account of the ice.

The drilled wheat in this county looks much better than that sown broadcast.

Prof. H. M. Perry is organizing a dancing class. The charge is fifty cents for each lesson.

Mr. Moss Taylor, late of the steamer W. P. Thompson, is now the first clerk of the Virgie Lee.

It is proposed to establish a hemp manufacturing establishment in Lexington at a cost of $60,000.

BUTTER in Maysville is now worth 25 and 30 cents, while flour has advanced in price 25 cents on the barrel.

Mr. T. Stark, Jr., died a few days ago at Portsmouth of consumption, and was buried at Dover, on Tuesday.

Mr. THOMAS M. FOWLER, of Mayslick, has made an assignment to George Myall, for the benefit of his creditors.

The wharfbat at Ironton was sunk by the Bostona on Tuesday evening. A considerable quantity of freight on the boat was saved by the deckhands on the Bostona.

At Paris on Monday Joe. Lawler, a railroad laborer, attempted to prevent one Mahoney from beating his wife, and for his efforts in behalf of law and order, was stabbed in the back, probably fatally.

The case of the Commonwealth against George Cooper, indicted for the murder of Insko, at the Germantown fair last October, was called in the Circuit Court, Tuesday afternoon. Some of the defendant's witnesses being absent, the case was laid over and set for trial, Thursday, the 25th inst.

The arguments in the case of Rice against the Maysville and Lexington Turnpike Company, were finished Tuesday afternoon, about three o'clock. The jury at a late hour this morning had not reported any verdict. It is the general belief that this, the third trial of the case, will result as the second, in a hung jury.

Sales of Land.

The following changes in the ownership of land have been recorded at the office of the Clerk of the County Court, since our last report:

M. C. Hutchins and wife to James G. White, house on lot on Second street in 5th Ward, Maysville; consideration, $885.

Visitation Academy.

The second session of the Academy of the Visitation, which is recognized as one of the most thorough educational institution of the State, will begin on the 1st of February with the usual large attendance of pupils. This school is under the charge of Sisters of the Visitation who have been selected on account of their efficiency as teachers, and is conducted according to a most admirable system which affords advantages rarely met with, even among the most popular and celebrated places of learning in the country. The terms of tuition, all things considered, are very low, while the accommodations of all kinds are very superior. For further particulars address the Mother Superior of the Visitation Academy, Maysville, Ky.

Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Orr, two of Maysville's most esteemed citizens will this evening, celebrate the fiftieth or golden anniversary of their marriage. Mr. Orr is a native Kentuckian and was married in Maysville half a century ago to Miss Massa Cora Crowell, a daughter of one of our well-known families. They have lived a quiet, unostentatious, useful life, and though well advanced in years, are still in the enjoyment of strength and health. They have the warm congratulations of the entire community.

Baird's Minstrel.

Don't miss seeing Baird's Zouave Cadets in their military maneuvers, and the Major in his lightning musket exercises, together with Baird's brilliant silver and gold band in choice selections, next Friday, the day of the performance in this city.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. Hanson Penn Diltz, of Augusta, is in the city to-day.

COUNTY POINTS.

MT. GILEAD.

We wish to say to "One Eye Open" that there may be a few men in Maysville who are so impolite as to run when a lady's trunk is to lift on or off of the stage, but in justice to the majority there, we will say that they are as polite and gentlemanly men as are to be found anywhere in the world, who, instead of getting out of the way when a lady needs help, always come to her assistance. We can testify that Tom. Worthington, Dr. Poehl and a host of others belong to this latter class.

P. E. M.

STONE LICK.

Mr. "One Eye Open," knowing you were "raised in the Baptist faith is the reason our fears were aroused by your misquotations and when we read your apology it proved, as we thought, that you had departed from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils. "He that is a heretic after the first and second admonition reject." Now beware you have had one.
We will say to the Maysvillians that we are sorry that they are so ungallant as to run when a lady's trunk comes in on the stage. Please send the trunk this way Mr. One Eye open, we will not only carry the trunk if it is of Jumbo's dimensions, but the lady herself, if she would permit, and consider it quite an honor, even though she was as large as the trunk.

REPORTER.

WASHINGTON.

Charley Biggers, an old Washington boy, but now of St. Louis, was visiting the Taylor boys, this week.

Rev. Mr. Evans, has been holding quite an interesting meeting here for a week.

Miss Ross, a beautiful young lady of Johnson Station, has been on a visit to her cousin, H. D. Knight and Family.

Aunt Kittle, Uncle Hiram Gifford's wife, died last Thursday. She was seventy-five years of age.

Rankins, cheer up! old Washington is on the boom again; she has a shoe shop and the barber's pole will soon be seen on Main street.

Mrs. Nellie Wood and family have arrived at home from Lebanon, Ohio.

Miss B. Curtis and mother, also Wm. Maddox and family, will move to town shortly to live. We give them a hearty welcome.

HEATHCOTE.

MILLWOOD.

B. Rawlings has been quite sick all winter with neuralgia. It is hoped, he will soon recover.

MARRIED.

January 24, 1883, at the residence of Mr. Wm. Martin, in this city, MISS JENNIE PETERS, of Portsmouth, O., to Mr. W. C. HOUSTLER, of this city.

DIED.

Monsieur JOSEPH ANTOINE GLOIREUX, the father of Rev. J. B. Gloireux, of Maysville, Ky., died at Courtenay, Belgium, Dec. 17, 1882, aged 90 years, 8 months and 6 days.

Three long years he waited the summons, That would open the bright portals above, Like a soldier, equipped in faith's armor, 'Neath a standard of holiest love.

All those years he labored for Heaven, Every moment was o'z on'd with gold, 'Mid life's trials, his hope gave him courage And e'en strengthen'd as mortals of old.

Thus, the fiat Divine found him ready, With his lamp, 'mid the gloom, burning bright.

And the angels, with joy, came to guide him, To their home in the regions of light.

Tho' 'ter from the lov'd ones who mourn him, He in spirit will ever be near.

And at death will be welcome them gladly, Where the fountain of life sorrow's clear.

How Custer Fell.

Miles City Journal.

We have received a communication from Huntley from an old trapper, guide and scout, who for many years has lived among the Indians of the Northwest. He claims that Custer died fighting—that he did not commit suicide—and that the Indians did not know him after he fell. As there are some new points in the letter which have never before been published, and we believe the writer to be sincere in what he writes, we publish herewith a synopsis of the article. He says: "I have been requested to write the Journal what I know of Gen. Custer's death, and my knowledge of William Cody. In 1876 I was with Gen. Crook, on Goose creek, when the Custer fight occurred. Cody was with Gen. Merritt, on Platte river somewhere; Cody never saw the Custer battle-ground. He can not speak the Indian language, nor talk the sign language; that I am sure of. He joined us with Merritt's command on Goose creek, and we met Gen. Terry on the Rosebud and marched in company to the mouth of the Powder river. There Cody left the command and went to the states. He has been there ever since, I believe. As a scout and prairie man he is seventy-five degrees below nothing. I have talked to the Sioux about the death of Custer, and they know nothing about him, only that he was killed. There was no 'massacre' about the fight. Custer attacked the camp and got cleaned up through the cowardice of Reno. Gen. Custer was a favorite with all prairie men; too good a man to be killed in the manner in which he was. For my part, I believe Custer was killed in battle, fighting like a 'little devil,' and fell long before the battle ended. 'Curly,' the only survivor, a Crow Indian, knows nothing about Custer's death. I do not believe there is a man living, red or white, who knows how Custer died."
